BALTIMORE, July 8-p. m.—The most reliable information here to night is that the rebels have been gradually driven back from Frederick by General Wallace, whose action since his promptness in taking command in the field has won fer him great praise and unbounded confidence. The enemy was repulsed by him three times yesterday, and as many times to-day. He is still pursuing, and the rebels retreating. drafts were made upon schools of lower grade, and when Miss Evans had obtained a sufficient number of scholars, she set to work to re-organize the school, which she done very satisfactorily. The first and second classes in mental arithmetic passed a good examination, and the only failures (some three or four) were in the second class. Mr. Z. Richards examined these classes, and he remarked that as to proficiency, the scholars were a little above the average run. When the class in botany was called, Mr. Wilson arose and said that some two months ago the trustees desired to introduce this study in this school, when the lowest book of the series was introduced, since which time the scholars of this class had accom-plished much. He (the speaker) believed it was an excellent study, and would interfere with no other. A year ago parents thought it was foolishness to introduce vocal music into the public schools, and perhaps some of them thought the same of botany, but he was con-vinced that they were mistaken. Mr. W. then introduced Prof. Schafer, of the Maryland Agricultural College, who examined the class thoroughly, upon the conclusion of which he remarked that he was perfectly satisfied with the progress the scholars had made. Several excellent compositions were read, and one entitled "The Flowers," by Miss Taite, received special commendation. In reading the scholars showed good training. The dictation exercises were good, and in the other studies the scholars passed a very fair examination indeed. The Second District.—Primary No. 6, taught in the third story of the Medical College, corner 10th and E streets, by Miss Woodruff, was examined on Wednesday morning by Mr. Wight, in the presence of a few visitors. This school was organized in February last, and Miss Woodruff, a pupil of the Grammar school, was tempororily placed in charge. It num-bers about 40 little girls, some of whom are just commencing spelling short words, and most of them were present. The scholars showed that they have been studious during the short time the school has been in operation, and they have certainly made an excellent commencement, The order of the school was excellent and the general appearance of the scholars reflected credit upon Miss Woodruff, who, we understand, will decline to serve as a permanent teacher. Secondary No. 2, taught in one of the lower rooms of the Washington Market building, 5th and I streets, by Miss Sabra P. Abell, was examined on Thursday afternoon by Mr. Rhees in the various studies they have been pursuing during the year. The school numbers 51 on the roll of whom 44 were present, and fully one-third are scholars who have been admitted this year. In geography a fair examination was passed, as also in spelling. The reading was very good in most instances, the spelling was tolerable, and in abreviations the scholars were excellent. The room was handsomely decorated, and on

The room was handsomely decorated, and on the wall in evergreen letters was "Union and Education." The order was not good. The school has some very bad boys, a few of whom will give any school a bad name, and rather than the credit of the school should suffer it would be well to weed them out. This school labors under many disadvan tages. It being on a street much travelled, the noise of passing vehicles frequently interrupts the studies. Third District.—Secondary, School No. 6 (male and female) was examined by Mr. Hitz, Miss Mary E. Ramsay, of the District Female Grammar School, and others, in the presence of a number of visitons. Miss Lucy B. Davis is the teacher, and she has 59 pupils on her roll, of whom 57 were present. There was every indication that the pupils had been well drilled in the elementary branches, but this school does not equal the one conducted last year by Miss D., so far as the studies were concerned. But we do not attribute this to any lack of industry or capacity on the part of the teacher, but to the pupils; for she certainly had not as good material to work upon as in her school of last year. Individual members of all the classes in all the studies answered correctly and quickly; but, as a whole, the classes were not equal to similar ones in other schools. We fear the trustees are a little to blame in not properly grading the schools; for Miss Davis has certainly a number of pupils who would bring discredit apon a first class in a primary school. Then, again, she has a number of pupils who, judging from their size, should be in a grammar school, but whose attainments will not more than warrant a transfer to one of the intermediate grade withe fault of themselves, or their parents. who did not send them to school earlier. Considering all the disadvantages she has labored under, the teacher has accomplished much the past year. This school is taught in the basement of Odd Fellows' Hall, and back of the 9th precinct station house, and Thursday it was much annoyed by unruly children who congregated about the doors of the school room, and by loud talking interrupted the exercises occasionally, and attracted the attention of the scholars. To this cause, the heat of the day, and the length of the examination, may be at-citing there was occasionally a good deal of whispering, despite the teacher afforts to preserve order. In the third class also, there are many scholars who have lately entered the school, and this cause undoubtedly operated against the examination being more perfect.

It is a satisfaction to know that the school will be removed to the new building. Miss Ramsay has 43 pupils upon her roll, and 42 were present at the examination, which was a rigid one, but which was at the same time very satisfactory, the boys excelling in mental arithmetic and dictation exercises. There will be a good many transferred to other schools. The order maintained was excellent and indicated that while Miss Ramsay is firm in her demands of the

The school passed a good examination generally, and the classes in montal arithmetic and reading particularly so. The teacher is a graduate of Mrs. Amidon's school, a sufficient reason why she is well qualified for her position.
